

Our Team of Professional Facilitators

Dan Jenkins, Ph.D., is Chair and Associate Professor of Leadership & Organizational Studies at the University of Southern Maine. Dan is a co-author of the book The Role of Leadership Educators: Transforming Learning and has published more than 30 articles and book chapters on leadership education and assessment. He has also presented research and facilitated workshops on leadership pedagogy, curriculum, and course design, around the world. Additionally, Dan is a former Chair of their Leadership Education Member Interest Group, Vice-Chair of the Collegiate Leadership Competition, Associate Editor of the Journal of Leadership Studies, and former Secretary of the Association of Leadership Educators.

Corey Seemiller, Ph.D., serves as an Associate Professor in the Department of Leadership Studies in Education and Organizations at Wright State University teaching undergraduate courses in organizational leadership as well as graduate courses in leadership development and student affairs and higher education. She is the author of The Student Leadership Competencies Guidebook and associated tools to help educators develop intentional curriculum that enhances leadership competency development and has served as an issue editor for New Directions for Student Leadership. Dr. Seemiller is also the co-author of Generation Z: A Century in the Making, Generation Z Goes to College, and Generation Z Leads.

Nathan Eva, Ph.D., is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Management at the Monash Business School, Australia. Nathan was awarded the 2016 and 2013 Dean's Award for Teaching Excellence and nominated for Monash University's 2017 and 2016 Vice-Chancellor's Award for Teaching Excellence for his local and international leadership development units. Nathan's research focuses on servant, ethical, and entrepreneurial leadership and has appeared in international outlets such as The Leadership Quarterly and Journal of Business Ethics.

S. Jeannette Guignard, Ed.D., serves as Director of Masters in Organizational Leadership and Associate Professor of Education, teaching in both the Bachelors and Masters in Organizational Leadership at California Baptist University. In addition to teaching at the university level, she has extensive experience in corporate learning and leadership coaching, including being a global executive trainer for Harvard Business Publishing.

Rian Satterwhite, M.A., M.Ed., serves as Director of the Office of Service Learning and Leadership at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas where they offer academic and co-curricular programs that help students develop critical leadership practices grounded in community, systems thinking, and the pursuit of social justice. He has served as Chair of Leadership Education and Convener of the Sustainability Leadership Group within the International Leadership Association, and co-chair of the 2018 & 2019 National Leadership Symposiums.

Nyasha M. GuramatunhuCooper, Ph.D., is an Assistant Professor of Leadership Studies at Kennesaw State University. Nyasha was born and raised in Zimbabwe, and the country's social, cultural, and historical background features heavily in her Leadership Studies scholarship. As a Leadership Studies educator, Nyasha prizes exploration of non-Western contexts of leadership, as well as the connection between leadership and cultural and social contexts. Additionally, Nyasha's teaching focuses on developing intercultural competence and global mindset in leadership education.

Todd Deal, Ph.D., is Higher Ed Portfolio Leader & Faculty at the Center for Creative Leadership, which he joined in 2018 following a 28-year career in higher education, working in both academic and student affairs. Todd also owns his own leadership education and leader development business, TDLearning, Inc. Todd is married to his high school best friend, Karen, and they have two young adult daughters - an artist (graphic design) and a scientist (biochemistry).

Jennie L. Walker, Ph.D., is Lead Faculty in Organizational Development and Leadership at University of the Rockies and Visiting Faculty at Indiana Tech's doctoral program in Global Leadership. Her research and publications focus on global leadership development, cross-cultural talent management and dynamic learning methods. She is also active in the field, facilitating executive education and consulting with organizations around the globe on their talent and organizational development needs. Her professional expertise is drawn from first-hand experience working in leadership development within several multinational Fortune 500 companies. Her publications include a book on global mindset development, along with several book chapters, journal articles, a magazine column in Inside HR, and professional blogs. She is an active speaker, presenting at ILA, AOM, SHRM, ATD, AERA, AIB, and HCI conferences.